

META LEADERSHIP NETWORK

Where leaders can share, learn and speak their truth

Meta has created a new kind of leadership network, one where leaders from all sectors can share and speak their truth.

Today, many leaders are so caught in the day-to-day busyness of their organisations, they don't get the chance to be the leader they want to be. Now, more than ever, we need leadership in our organisations to help create a more effective way of working, one that enables everyone in their organisations to perform at their best. At Meta we're on a mission to change the world of work for the better, and that's why we believe it's part of our purpose to create this leadership network.

This is an opportunity for all leaders, from all sectors, to come together and share their experiences, talk honestly about what's really going on in the world of work, and help each other to overcome the common obstacles they face.

Each network meeting, facilitated by Meta's Di Kamp and Jo Clarkson, will be around a theme and all leaders attending will be able to share their good practices and develop their own leadership skills, in a structured and interactive half-day workshop.

The aim is to develop a mutually supportive network/environment where leaders can speak openly; share best practice, pick up new leadership tools, and learn how to thrive in today's challenging organisational workplace.

NEXT LEADERSHIP NETWORK EVENT:

THE FUTURE OF WORK & THE COVID RECOVERY

This has been an incredibly challenging time for leaders and so we felt it was time to get you all together to discuss the future of working. With so many different experiences and so many different approaches to returning to work post-Covid, we felt now was a great time to get the leaders in our network together to share their experiences and to talk openly about what they think lies ahead in the coming months. It's also been very isolating being a leader through this time, so this network event is a chance to talk to like-minded leaders from all sectors, who are all part of the Meta family too. We are putting on two half-day virtual workshops in October, so please let us know which date you'd prefer.
